Overview

Logline
On a hot summer's day, Kevin reflects on leaving the only thing he's ever known—the neighborhood.

Synopsis
Kevin, an elderly man of the neighborhood, gets off the train and applies for his first passport. With a full life spent in the heart of his community, Kevin has finally set his sights on somewhere new.

In an effort to reflect on this life decision he strolls through his neighborhood park, walking through moments nearly trapped in time: children play under a fountain, chess players plot their next moves, and new friends are made.

While Kevin considers all he has yet to know, he finds himself surrounded by a world he knows all too well. And through a simple question, he is put to ease by this new found sense of nostalgia for the only place he's ever called home.

Director's Statement
In this narrative, I delve into the essence of transformation and self-discovery, presenting a story that pays tribute to the quiet strength and resilience within us all. "Somewhere" becomes an exploration of the moments that, though fleeting, leave an indelible mark on our souls, and make up the fabric of the human experience.

This film is more than a story; it's a recognition of the silent influences that have shaped us, and a tribute to the farewells we owe to mentors, guardians, and memories. They teach us not only to flourish but also the invaluable lesson of letting go.

There's bravery in knowing when to cherish and when to step into the unknown. I invite you to join me in this cinematic exploration of grittitude.

Team & Talent

Jake Savitz (Writer, Director, Editor)
Jake is a director based in Brooklyn. He makes films about everyday people and life's simple pursuits.

Hunter Jones (Producer)
Hunter Jones is an independent producer with experience across a wide range of productions, including commercials, music videos, and narrative films - both short and feature-length. Especially interested in psychology and the nature of human behavior, Hunter is always working to tell captivating and unique stories that provoke a deep sense of reflection and examination. Hunter lives and works in New York City.

Huston Pigford
Huston Pigford is a New York City actor who has been acting since 2015 and has appeared in numerous TV shows, feature & short films, and off-broadway shows. Prior to acting, Huston was an MTA City bus driver for over 20 years and knows NYC like the back of his hand. Huston lives on Staten Island, New York.

Milani-Stella Rivera
Milani-Stella Rivera is a talented 9-year-old who excels in dance, acting, singing, and modeling. Her experience extends to both the stage and screen, with appearances in various films like "Nothing Except Everything", "Somewhere", "Go for Grandma", "The Ballet Teacher" and "Peas", as well as TV series, commercials, and musical theater productions such as "Seussical", "Mary Poppins", and "Disney's Camp Rock". What truly sets Milani-Stella apart is not only her exceptional talent but also her genuine kindness and remarkable coachability, making her a pleasure to collaborate with.

Issue №6
A lifeline, across
distance, time,
and memory.

Raised in a nomadic tribe on the far edge of the Sahara desert, Sidi doesn't have a father like the other kids. He dreams of meeting him, even after his mom explains he's gone away to heaven, a journey from which he won't return.

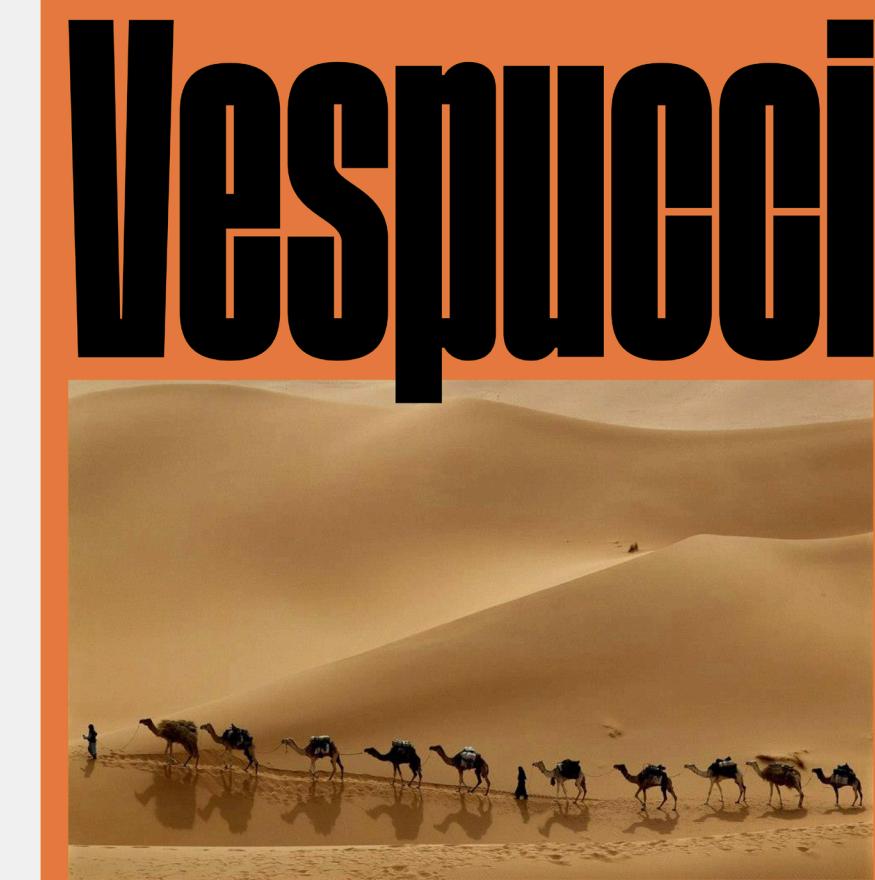

Chighali

Journalist: Sahar Zand / Audio: Evan Phillips

Kings Plaza Mall

NYC doesn't really have mall culture the way other cities do. In Brooklyn, we have Kings Plaza. Honestly, that shit is a trek even if you live in the borough. The movie theater and Joyce Leslie are long gone — it's a Best Buy now. I think. The Cookie House, which is still there (!!!), will outlive us all.

Empire Rollerskating Rink

Memories of this place are vivid and also vague.

It closed in 2007. It was 50 years old. Remember the island in the center with the neon palm tree? It was there during my era.
